

Abstract of the Invention

The present invention relates to improved methods for conducting multiplexed assays of multiple target analytes in a manner that permits each target analyte to be assayed within a dynamic assay range. The invention further relates 5 to reagents capable of implementing such methods.

10071395-020802